Tutoring Experience

I'm an Assistant Head-Teacher at a prestigious UK educational institution, guiding the school's academic vision and ensuring alignment with global and British standards. In my leadership role, I manage a diverse global team, implement improvements to the curriculum, and integrate digital citizenship into lessons.

When it comes to teaching and learning, I concentrate on strategies for online collaboration, create an online rewards system, and elevate the challenge levels in lessons. In staff development, I handle recruitment, training, and management of teaching staff, placing a strong emphasis on continuous professional development. My proficiency in online learning platforms and technology is enhanced by my role as a geography tutor, providing personalized support to students over the past five years.

With qualifications as a geography teacher and AQA GCSE Geography examiner experience, I bring deep knowledge to A-level and GCSE course content. My tutoring experience, both online and in-person, primarily focuses on assisting A-level Geography students while also providing support for GCSE Geography. Through effective teaching practices, technology integration, and personalized approaches, I aim to inspire students to learn at their own pace and succeed in their academic journey.
