

 University of Cambridge: MEd in English

Born in London, now based in Mecca, I am a dedicated and empathetic educator. My specialization in IB, A-level English, and Theory of Knowledge helps students unlock their potential, whereas my expertise in research techniques ensures students feel prepared for the challenges ahead. Online teaching is my forte, where I adjust to cater to each student's learning style.

Tutoring Experience

With 5 years of teaching experience under my belt, I've guided over 80 students in their IB and A-Level journey. It's always a delight to witness their academic scores surpass the predicted grades, typically by at least two grades. My focus ranges from English literature and language, Theory of Knowledge, to research methodologies.

Tutoring Approach

My philosophy of tutoring is anchored in flexibility and student-centricity. I aim to understand the unique learning styles of my students and modify my methods to suit them. Whether we're exploring English texts, delving into Theory of Knowledge discussions, or strategizing research, I foster a supportive space where students are motivated to think critically. We'll break down complex topics, perfect exam techniques, and analyze past papers together. For research, we go in-depth into the process, crafting a robust framework that students can rely on. My aim is to foster a passion for learning and instill confidence in my students.
